VOLUME VIII. NO. 74.

MISS MARTINEAU.

We observe in the National Intelligencer, a laudatory poetical address to this lady of considerable length, and for its length, of unusual smoothness and beauty of versification. The sentiments also are very just. We extract the following as a poetimen to the capacities of children. By John E. Lovell—author of an introductory Arithmetic," and "The United States Speaker." For sale by MARSH, CAPEN & LYON.

(HANNING'S SERMON ON MARSH)

We greet thee, stranger, from Eritannia's land, With cordial welcome, and with clasping hand. And said I stranger? Say the word no more, Since Martineu's a stranger on no shore. Her warm bonevolence—her expanded mind, Embrace as kindred all of human kind. Then welcome, friend and sister! since you come From our forefather's transatlantic home.
Differing in forms, not principle—our ain, Our laws, our customs. language still the same: Our laws, our customs, language still the same; Then, while with philosophic eye you trace The various powers develop'd in our race; Be rival interests, rejudice and pride, And ev'ry hostile feeling laid aside. Remember, 'tis the infant—not the man, Whose strength you measure, and whose pow'rs you scan

Thy genius, not by smiling fancy led
O'er life's smooth surface, flow'ry paths to tread;
But the deep tracts of science to explore,
To simplify its rules, and teach the poor
Their real interests. This the task designed
By all the labors of thy powerful mind.
Wherever tyrant laws or modes oppress,
Thy ardent zeal discovers some redress;
Intuitive perception guide the way,
To errors shrinking from the light of day;
Enlighten ignorance, and with foresight clear,
Discover hope, and dissipate despair.

Miss Martineau, as we predicted on her arrival, has become quite a lion at Washington, and is as we learn, all the rage—all the distinguished persons of the country there assembled, from the President downward, vieing with each other who should may her the most courtesy—a homoge justly due to her great mind and noble philanthropy.—N. Y. Star.

A SCENE FROM THE DELUGE .- (German.)

Now only the highest summit peeped out of the waters. Semin, a noble youth, to whom the fairest of maids had sworn eternal truth, had landed his beloved Zamira on this pinnacle. Alone, for all the rest had been swept off by the flood, they stood in the howling storm wind. The waves broke upon them, the thunder bellowed above them, and below roars a swelling ocean. Gloomy was the darkness around, unless when lightning illuminated the dismal scene. Every cloud threatened destruction from its dark brow, and every wave rolled carcasses along, and seemed yawning for a further prey. Zemira pressed her lover to her trembling heart. Tears mingled with the rain-drops which trickled down her pale cheeks. See spake with a faltering voice—"There is no hope of safety more. My beloved Semin, we are on all sides surrounded with lowering death. O desolation! O woe! You may see it climb nearer and nearer, the death which awaits us. Which of these billows is to submerge us. Hold me in thy cold and shivering arms, my beloved! Soon shall I, soon shall thou, be no more. Swept into the universal whirlpool of destruction. Now, my God, what a wave approaches! it glitters in the lightning-it passes over She spake, and sank powerless on Selim.

"O God of judgment," she exclaimed, "is there no safety, no pity for us. How the waves rush, the thunders roar, and the voice of winds tell of this unatomable vengeance. O God, our years have passed in innocence. Thou, my Semin, was the most virtuous of youths. Woe to me! thou hast adorned my being with a thousand joys; but they are fled, they are gone forever. And thou, who gavest me my life, thou, too, forever. And thou, who gavest me my life, thou, too, hast been torn from my side, and my tortured sight had to behold thee lifting up thy head above the waters, and thy arms for the last time, as if to bless me. All are swallowed up. Yet, Semin, Semin, this lonely and Also, constantly on hand a general assortment of Surgical Inhast been torn from my side, and my tortured sight had are swallowed up. The operation of the machine produces the following effect: new feathers are dried of their excessive moisture and purified of their disagreeable and unpleasant odor. The same results are effected on old teathers, and besides they are restored to are effected on old teathers, and besides they are restored to their original liveliness, even after they have been long compressed together and rendered exceedingly uncomfortable for repose. They are also thoroughly cleaned of all the dirt, perspiration, and pestiferous gasses, which feathers long used must have imbibed, which cannot be otherwise than injurious to health, and which has never failed to excite the wonder of those who have witnessed the result.

As this is the first machine of the kind ever put in operation in the United States, which has been highly recommended by physicians and others in all places where it has been established, the subscriber feels confident it will receive immediate attention from all lovers of health, comfort and economy. The operation of dressing the feathers is simple and may be witnessed by any who are dispased to call at the shop, No 102 Cambridge street, where the machine is in successful opera-there is a question of dignity which now adds to the complication of the political question. We do not know what course the government will think proper to follow in this affair. But of this we are certain that they will consider it in the double point of view it now presents, and that their efforts will be directed to reconcile national honor with the faith of

From le Journal du Commerce - (Anti-Ministerial,) There has been much talk to-day of the hostile disposition announced by President Jackson in his message to the American Congress, in reprisal of the vote of the Chamber of Deputies, which rejected the appropriation panied besides by considerations, which show that in the mind of the honorable President, resentment does not exclude prudence and reflection. * * * Neither can we blame the President for dwelling in exaggerated terms on the undoubted justice of his claim, or for adopting that view of the case most favorable to himself, when he says that France has acknowledged her the blame. In admitting that the first fact is the national opinion, we are not obliged to admit the positive deduction drawn from it. It is well known in the United States, that no treaty implying a vote of subsidies, is obligatory upon the country until it has obtained ly. * * * We believe, for our part, that if French property is seized in America, American property ought to be treated in the same way in France; and that if American cruizers are met by our cruizers, committing depredations on our commerce, the corsairs ought to be treated as pirates, according to the strict letter of the law of nations; seeing, that to exercise the right of fitting out for privateering, it is previously necessary to declare war, and the United States have not me to that as yet. On the whole, this message, which is probably calculated to flatter the passions of the democratic party, on which General Jackson deciation, which would be the only means of conciliating the difference. The adoption by the Chamber of the law rejected at the last session, was already very difficult—we do not hesitate to say that it has now become

The Constitutionnel (Anti-Ministerial) says, that all are unanimous in feeling that the dignity of France has been wounded by the President's Message; but he is deceived if he supposes that his menace will induce the legislative bodies to give a sanction which they have once refused. Whatever may be the timorous habits of the Chambers, they will not, in the face of the country, appear to yield to fear. The United States have ruined their cause even if their claims had been legitimate. The conduct of the French Ministry in this unfortunate dispate, has not a little contributed to render the solution difficult, after having, with inconceivable stephlay, recognised a debt which the restoration had astually disavowed. ESQUIRE LANDINER. TO WILLIAM H. GARDINER. Esquire, Lawyer, and partner with Franklin Dexter, now a member of the Senate, and Attorney to the Heirs of John & Society Codman:

a member of the Senate, and Attorney to the Heirs of John & Rich'd Codman:—
Seeing in the Post and other newspapers, on Monday, 9th Feb1835, an advertisement signed by you, cautioning all persons against believing a statement made by William Vans, under the head of a petition "that is utterly false and unfounded"—my answer to this assertion is—go into a Court of Justice, and let a Jury say if John & Richard Codman were not copartners in their transactions with me;—that I have petitioned the Legislature to grant that privilege for more than tweuty years—and one thir—of this time the House were almost unammous in my favor; the Senate only, refusing to concur.

These are facts certified by Hon George Blake, District Attorney—Dan'l Davis, late Solicitor General, and Augustus Peabody—who all say they have seen judgments rendered in France, condemning John & Richard Codman as copartners, to pay my demand, that now amounts to 500,000 dollars.

These facts you must have known—which shows that twere is not a sentence of truth in your statement.

there is not a sentence of truth in your state

N.B.—All printers who have published the Libel of W. H. Gardiner, are respectfully requested to send their bills to him (Mr Gardiner)—and if he does not pay them——please charge william vans.

RODGERS' IMPERIAL STOCKS.

WILLIAM H. ROGERS, most respectfully invites the attention of Merchant Tailors and the public generally, to insnew invented Imperial Stocks for the Neck, which for easa and elegance very far surpass every thing of the kind hitherto manufactured in this vicinity. They are cut scientifically in the materials and manner of making are quite different from those in common use, and they may be covered many times, and refain exactly the same shape as when first made. W. H. K. requests permission to enumerate the usual haults in the common Stocks viz. 1st, the very inferior materials used; 2d, their string away from the chin and exposing the neck, when disagreed to score seasts in the Rail Road Line.
